Online Safety Answers

Why should you be careful about the photos you put online?

Photos could give people information about where you live or go to school.

When you are older, you may be embarrassed by a photo you have put online, but once it is on the internet, you can't take it back.

Who should you allow to see your information and photos online?

Only allow trusted friends and family to see your information and photos online. Never share your information or photos with strangers.
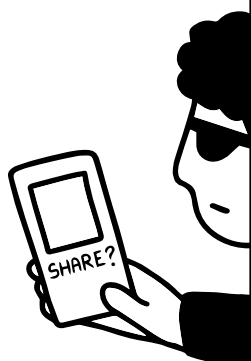

What information tells someone where you live or go to school?

Photos outside your home or school can tell someone where you live or go to school. Pictures of your school uniform, or the school logo can also tell people where you go to school.

Why can it be dangerous speaking to people you've never met online?

It can be dangerous to speak to someone you've never met online because they might not be who they say they are. Sometimes people pretend to be someone else online.

What could someone do if they had a copy of your personal photos?

If someone had a copy of your personal photos, they could use it to pretend to be you. They could also use it to tease you or be unkind.
